Men's Trousers

Just about now the trousers of your Fall suit are beginning to show the signs of wear. The coat and vest is plenty good enough; they always wear about twice as long as the trousers. An extra pair of trousers, that's the thing.

Not as many trousers to select from as we had early in the season but the average man will tire before he reaches the end of the assortment. Slim men with 30 inch waists or stout, portly men with 40 inch waist, can be fitted from this stock.

Of course, the variety is greater in the average, ordinary sizes—but in these extra sizes, you'll not be limited to one or two styles for choice.

Flannel Waists at Reduced Prices

Our announcement yesterday morning of reduced prices on flannel waists met with an immediate response. Reductions are as follows:

$1.25 Flannel Waists, 90c.
$1.25 Satine Waists, 90c.
$2.25 Flannel Waists, $1.75
$2.50 Taffeta Waists, $1.75

The quantity of satine waists is not very large. Of the flannel waists at 90c., all sizes and colors—navy, red and black—are still to be had. It is not exaggeration to call them $1.25 waists, for they are worth all of that.

There are more colors to select from in the $1.75 waists, reduced from $2.25 than in the 90c. line. Though higher priced, the bargain is just as pronounced.

If taffeta silk waists at $1.75 would interest you, then the "taffeta-line" waists will interest you just as much. If we didn't tell you, you'd probably think them genuine taffeta silk.

Pinch tucks down back and front; stock collar trimmed with pearl buttons. From $2.50 to $1.75.

Umbrella Shawls

We've been out of these for a short time. Plenty of them now. They call them umbrella shawls because they are crocheted just the shape of an umbrella cover. They are very dainty and pretty, and comfortable when thrown over one's shoulders.

White with pink, blue, lavender, red and blue borders.
$1.50 and $2.00

Political Battle Royal Foraker and Hanna

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 3.—The bitter fight for political supremacy between adherents of Senators Foraker and Hanna continues today with extraordinary intensity. The fight is on speakership of the Ohio Legislature. Price represents the Foraker interests and McKinnon the Hanna faction. The caucus will be held tomorrow night and both sides claim a victory. A count this morning given out by an apparently unbiased source shows that there are not two votes to spare either way. This fight is the culmination of a long and bitter political enmity between Hanna and Foraker. The control of the legislature is considered to be vital to the political interests of both the senators.

DOUGLAS REVIEWED

No Boom, but an Assured Substantial and Steady Growth

DOUGLAS, Jan. 3, 1902.

Happy New Year.
Temperature, 76 in the shade.

Mr. S. F. Meguire has returned to Douglas, having enjoyed his Christmas and New Year in Bisbee. Mr. Meguire is the secretary of the International Land and Improvement company and these days about the busiest individual in Douglas.

C. A. Overlock, postmaster of Douglas, spent his Christmas in Bisbee.

The town of Douglas has no so-called boom, nor is it the desire of the company to have one. On the other hand, the townsite company are satisfied with the present order of things. Within the next sixty days, in which time railway construction with Denning and the A. T. & S. F. railroad will have been made, the townsite company will then be better prepared to accommodate capitalists in the matter of lots.

Water works are being put in as fast as it can be done. A complete apparatus for a city telephone system has been ordered, and the wires and instruments will be put up within the next two months.

Of course Douglas is yet in embryo, and at present does not present an inviting appearance, but the grading of the streets, the completion of the water system and the telephone system in operation, all of which may be looked for by March 1st next, will change very materially the appearance of Douglas.

A census of the town yesterday shows seventy-three houses and thirty tents on the east side of the main track of the El Paso & Southwestern railway. On the west side there are twelve houses and forty-five tents; total, eighty-five houses and seventy-five tents. A number of these enumerated above, all upon the east side, are yet unfinished.

The railroad company has put in a spur, leaving the main track at Fifteenth street, which runs south to Tenth street, where it terminates in the rear of the Copper Queen's big store building.

Mr. Walter Douglas, for whom this town is named, has begun the erection of a large hall, forty by eighty feet, on the south side of Tenth street and one block east of the Ord hotel. This hall to be used temporarily for religious services, and ultimately for the Copper Queen's public library. It is said that "crack" orders have been issued and the hall will be erected at once.

The El Paso & Southwestern railway, which, by the way, has close business connections with the great Rock Island and A. T. & S. F. systems, is now between fifty-five and sixty miles out from here and perhaps a like distance west of Denning. So soon as the "gap" is closed, a large party of railway people, accompanied by a number of eastern capitalists, are expected to visit Douglas, Bisbee and other points.

This event may be looked for about March 1st, and the citizens of Douglas, with the help of those of Bisbee, propose to celebrate the occasion by a grand banquet, as it will surely be a red letter day for Douglas. The El Paso and Southwestern road is, without doubt, one of the most substantially constructed roads west of the Missouri river. The passenger depot and offices, as well as their freight depot, are the largest and finest structures of their kind to be seen in the southwest, between San Bernardino and Kansas City. The new building, sixty by one hundred feet, to be used by the railroad company for a paint shop, is nearing completion. The passenger depot is about finished, and these two completed, the company then begin work on their new roundhouse.

The Calumet-Arizona Copper company, whose works are soon to be put up near Douglas, have commenced work at their smelter site, and ground is now being broken for the foundations. The necessary machinery from the east will be shipped here, so soon as railway connection is made with Denning. The erection of this plant at Douglas means much for the prosperity and upbuilding of the town. However, much time will have elapsed before real genuine prosperity, or much real business, has permanently settled down in Douglas.

In the matter of the recent holdup of Mr. White's saloon, some new and very important developments have come to light. It appears now that public suspicion has been sniffling upon the wrong scent, and but one man was in the job. In the rear of White's place is a tent, in which slept three or four men. On the night of the unsuccessful attempt to holdup the saloon, the occupants of the tent retired for sleep at their usual hour. One of the four men is a cook, who formerly worked for the Cananea Copper company, and lately for the railroad contractors at the front, and who, by the way, so it is said, once "did time" at Yuma, is the man the public suspect. There are many circumstances which point strongly to his guilt, but he is now supposed to be across the line in Mexico.

Steamer Walla Walla Run Down and Sunk

Tureka, Cal., Jan. 3.—Early this morning the steamer Walla Walla was run down by a French sailing vessel and sunk. It was reported that forty lives were lost. The vessel had a crew of 50 and carried 68 passengers. A life boat brought in fourteen. The steamer Dispatch picked up sixty-three from rafts and boards. The French vessel offered no assistance but sailed away.

San Francisco, Jan. 3.—This afternoon the company reports only twenty-seven passengers and crew, of the steamer Walla Walla, missing and declares the rest have been accounted for.
